Turner, Anne M. Managing Money: a guide for librarians. McFarland & Co., c2007. Z683.2U6 T87 2007

This information packed resource is much more than a basic text on budgeting. It includes 10 chapters of financial related topics—from developing a budget, to creating a bid document, and understanding an audit. Even includes a chapter on budget management terms and definitions. I highly recommend this as a must purchase for every library director to include on his/her office shelf.

This resource presents information concerning young adult behavior and ideas based upon neurological, psychological and educational research. Librarians working with teens will find the discussions in this book helpful when looking at current and future services offered to teens in libraries.
